Statement on Use of Face Coverings

The Royal Commission has a legal and moral responsibility to provide a safe working environment for its staff, and we take this responsibility seriously.

As part of our obligations under the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act (1974) and the Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations (1999) we have undertaken an assessment of the risks posed to our staff and those who may be affected by our work. This assessment has identified that there remains a risk of transmission of Covid-19 when using our search room.

We are obligated to take all reasonably practicable measures to protect both staff and people using our service. We will be ensuring that there is natural ventilation in our search room, and we will be managing numbers of users to ensure the room does not become too busy. In addition to these measures we will require all staff and visitors to wear face coverings whilst they are working in our search room.

We will continue to monitor the risks posed by Covid-19, and will review the ongoing usefulness of our controls on a regular basis and adapt where possible.
